DELEGATES PLAN DEVELOPMENT OF LAKE TRANSPORT

(By Associated Press)

Manitowoc, Wis., Mar. 1.—Transportation problems confronting lake port cities and opportunities for development of shipping are occupying the attention of nearly 100 representatives of 65 harbor towns meeting here today at a Great Lakes conference to formulate plans for the development of water highways.

Two subjects are of chief concern to the delegates: the opening of routes to the sea from Great Lakes and the lowering of lake levels thru the diversion of water by the Chicago drainage canal. Both were taken up by speakers who dwelt upon their importance and upon the action that might be taken to further the interests of the port cities.

It is expected that as a result of the Great Lakes conference a permanent organization of city representatives will be affected. This organization will be devoted to the formulation and furtherance of plans for developing lake shipping.

Waterway Vital Need

The Great Lakes-St. Lawrence deep waterway project was described by Frank Kerwin managing director of the Green Bay Association of Commerce, speaking before the conference today as "the most important project of this generation," needed to improve transportation in the country.

"Without this waterway to supplement our rail transportation plant, we are indeed facing a most gloomy prospect," the speaker declared. He suggested two remedies both of which in his opinion would aid the Middle West and nation in solving the problem of getting its prodocts to market, one, to "call off alleged statesmen and give the railroads a fighting chance," the other to "develop inland waterways not with a view to supplanting, but with the idea of supplementing the railroads."

Deep Canal Needed

Mr. Kerwin expressed doubt whether barge canals could be constructed and operated successfully. Deep waterways he declared to afford the one means of meeting transportation difficulties and opening the Great lakes to ocean commerce.

"The development of deep waterways is an entirely different problem from that of the development of barge canals," he said. "In our Great Lakes route we have the most perfect transportation system known to man. The Great lakes route afters the highest expression of the transportation art. There is handled annually on these lakes approximately 200,000,000 tons of freight. This tremendous volume of traffic is handled in an efficient, expeditious and dependable manner at rates lower than those obtaining eleswhere.

Situation Ideal

"We have in the Great lakes route the most perfect coordination of rail and water transportation. We have an ideal transporation situation and are provided with loads in both directions."

Mr. Kerwin spoke of a danger which he said was threatening due to regulations of the Wisconsin railroad commission and other bodies which permit shipment by rail of coal into this territory. He urged a change in the present rates on coal shipments from the docks inland.

"I urge," the speaker concluded, "that all interests strive for an enlightened public opinion. We should consider the waterway problem not so much as a railroad problem, but rather as a transportation problem. We should cooperate until it hurts in an effort to save transportation whenever possible and we should do all in our power to bring about a sane use of every transportation facility we have available."

Senate Votes For Repeal Of Tax Secrecy

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis., Mar. 1—Complete repeal of the secrecy clause to the state income tax law was voted today by the Wisconsin senate, 22 to 9, when it sent to engrossment the Severson bill, opening the income returns to the public.

A substitute amendment to permit only state, county and local officials to have access to the income tax information, was indefinitely postponed, 19 to 12.

Passage is Certain

Passage of the bill, sweeping all restrictions from inspection of income statements, is accepted as a certainty in the assembly. This will mean fulfillment of a platform pledge which served as a central issue in the last political campaign.

The fight against the proposal on the floor of the Senate centered about the substitute amendment offered by Senator W. L. Smith of Neillsville. This was classed as a "fraud and cheat" by Senator Severson, author of the original bill. He pointed out that Governor Blaine vetoed a similar measure passed at the special session in March, 1922.

FARM CREDIT BILL PASSED IN HOUSE

MEASURE DESIGNED TO GIVE RELEASE TO AGRICULTURE ADOPTED BY BIG VOTE; NEW ENGLAND OPPOSED.

Washington, Mar. 1—The farm credits bill, proposed to establish two new banking systems, one government and the other private, to meet the financial interests of the agricultural industry, was passed today by the House. Hall Asks For Cut In Department Appropriation

Madison, Wis. March 1—Elmer S. Hall, Wisconsin conservation commissioner, went before the joint finance committee of the legislature today with a request that the appropriation of his department for the coming biennium be cut $172,495 below the request for funds made by his predecessor in office.

This cut, Mr. Hall said, could be made by the committee without interfering in any way with the conservation activities of his department. He expressed the opinion that the conservation activities of the state could be carried on even more efficiently than in the past, with a much smaller appropriation.

The orginal request for the coming year had ben set at $438,000 by the former commissioner. Mr. Hall asked a cut of $94,015. The request for 1925 was $404,000 and the new request reduced that amount by $78,000.

Contempt Defendants May Get Right Of Jury Trial

Madison, Wis.—Defendants charged with contempt of court could demand a jury trial and a judge would not have it in his power to decide whether or not man had committed contempt under the terms of a bill by Assemblyman Clinton Price, Mauston.

Price says that his bill was drawn up with particular emphasis to apply to labor cases.

Burke Cockran Apoplexy Victim; Dies Early Today

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Mar. 1—Representative W. Burke Cockran of New York died suddenly today.

Mr. Cockran, who celebrated his sixty-ninth birthday yesterday, became ill last night and died early today. He was on the floor of the lower house last night and made a spirited speech in opposition to the pending credits bill. Mr. Cockran's death came as an immediate result of a stroke of apoplexy, it was said at his home.

Picturesque Figure

A native of Ireland, educated in France and the United States and active for many years in local affairs and in politics, Mr. Cockran was one of the most picturesque forces in American public life.

He was an orator of the old school, endowed with a remarkable voice, delivery and diction, and was known as one of the most eloquent orators of the country.

In politics he was a "Wheelhorse" of Tammany Hall, and he gave speeches in New York and elsewhere on many occasions.

Turnover At High School 79 Percent In Four Years

The turnover in the teaching force of the Wisconsin Rapids high school is 79 percent every four years, Principal J. Winden of the school stated today. Mr. Winden was incorrectly quoted in yesterday's Tribune as stateing that the turnover was 79 percent a year. Thirty-four percent of the teachers at the high school are men not four percent as stated yesterday.

The Fourth International Congress of Refrigeration will be held in London next June.

NEW BILL CHANGING PENSION SYSTEM SURE OF PASSAGE; OPPOSITION TO SCHOOL FRATERNITIES SHOWN

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis., Mar. 1—Determined opposition against the state blind bureau was expressed yesterday when the committee on public welfare heard a bill introduced by Assemblyman Alex C. Rufling of Milwaukee to abolish the bureau and pension law and appropriation, and create a new pension system.

Dr. G. Hogue and Frank Klode of Milwaukee, members of the bureau spoke against the proposed legislation and declared the bureau had not been established long enough to show any appreciable results.

Although action by the committee was deferred until this afternoon proponents of the bill declared that it would pass the assembly regardless of the committee's recommendations.

The Ruffing bill would increase the pension allowed blind persons to not less than $150 per year, nor more than $360, and for blind and deaf to not less than $360 annually nor more than $720.

Ask Ban On Fraternities

Complete banning of all fraternities from public schools of Wisconsin was favored by the state senate last night when it sent to engrossment the Lange bill forbidding secret societies. Such a statute is needed, Senator Lange of Eau Claire declared, in order to break up the cliques of students organized in some schools of the state.

Abolish Milwaukee Court

The Senate voted for abolition of the municipal court in Milwaukee and to create two additional branches of the circuit court, transferring to the branches the duties of the tribunal to be abolished.

Aid For Farmers

With little opposition the upper house drafted a proposed amendment to the constitution which would permit the state to incur indebtedness in order to establish a farm loan system. This constitutional amendment, passed in the 1921 session and accepted by the assembly, will go to the voters in 1924.

Officers Abolished

Abolition of the offices of treasury agent and automobile inspector working under the secretary of state, was recommended today by the state affairs committee of the upper house in reporting two bills of Senator Gettelman of Milwaukee for passage.

The proposal would place the duties of the treasury agents charged with collecting license fees from peddlers, hawkers, street merchants and showmen, under the state treasury. The other bill would do away completely with automobile inspectors.

Comes In Like A Lamb; Will It Go Out Like a Lion?

"Well we're in for it now! Anytime you see old March coming in like a lamb it's a dead pipe cinch that she'll go out roaring like a lion with the wind howling and whistling 'round the corners and the ice and snow remaing long after the spring plowing should be in" says old timer who has been "around these parts for nigh onto forty years, I reckon."

Old As History

The fact is that weather predictions are as old as history, some dating back to the age of king Tut and his followers. For centuries ground hog weather prophets have been watching the antics of the little animal in hopes of forecasting the weather. If the sun was out on February 2 farmers would delay their spring plowing and planting in fear of running into a frost or cold spell and in this way crops would be delayed and lessened.

Another prediction was: "If it rains on Saint Swithin's Day it will rain on each of the succeeding forty days". All of these prophecies are merely guesswork yet they have a tendency to be believed by large numbers, sometimes to their detriment.

A few years ago when a large comet was supposed to visit this portion a great many people believed that the world would end. It was prophecied that the comet would come so close to the earth that the flames from its tail would envelope the earth with flames. Those who believed this thery sold their homes and farms and in some cases "went out on a right good time" to enjoy themselves before the dreaded event would occur.

Modern Methods Superior

The point is that modern weather predictions are vastly superior to the old prophecies. The U. S. Weather Bureau, which was started in 1870 as a service for sailors and shippers, is superior in every way to the old hand me down traditional prophecies that are anything but reliable.

In the period from 1915 to 1919 the weather and temperature forecasts were 88.4 per cent correct and in most cases differed greatly from the "forecasts" of old time weather prophets who obtained their information from old traditional beliefs that have been proven obsolete by U. S. Weather Bureau methods.

Regardless of the lamb like tendency that was evidenced by weather conditions today it is not assured that the last few days of the month will go out like a lion as this prophecy has failed in times gone by and stands a good chance of failing again.

Roads Breaking; Prospects Good For Auto Show

Prospects for the coming Central Wisconsin Automotive show as far as attendance is concerned grow brigter each day on account of the breaking up of the roads due to the extremely warm weather now prevalent. While county highway and state highway officials promise nothing this week, they predict that next week early practically all the roads in the county, at least the main travelled roads, concrete and patrolled system roads, will be opened to permit comparatively easy travel if the various towns cooperate in taking care of the badly drifted portions, as has already been done in the town of Cranmoor and other sections of the county.

Point Dealers Anxious

Fred Ragan, manager of the Automotive Show stated that Stevens Point Motor Dealers were willing to cooperate and stated that they would bring car load after car load of people from their city over Route 66 if this weather continues for another two or three days. They predicted the big interurban bus would also come through shortly and that once a beaten path were made in the drifted portions that the rest of the road would be easy to negotiate.

The decorations for the show are now enroute to this city according to Manager Ragan who has received notice of shipment. Practically everything is in readiness to start the decorating and arranging the displays which will commence about Tuesday of next week.

TAX PAYMENTS SMASH RECORDS

$228,000 PAID INTO CITY TREASURY DURING LAST TWO DAYS OF LEGAL PERIOD; USUAL AMOUNT OUTSTANDING

Two record breaking days, Tuesday and Wednesday, during which $228,000.48 in taxes, or practically two-thirds of the total amount, were paid in to City Treasurer Joe Norton at his office in the city hall, brought the percentage of city taxes paid on time up to the usual average at the closing of the alloted period for making payments last night. Just how much remains outstanding on which penalties will have to be paid has not yet been computed; but it is estimated that the total will not run above that of other years.

A large part of the taxes paid the last two days were those of corporations and other large stockholders who regularly withhold their payments until close to the expiration of the legal period. In addition to these however, many of the smaller taxpayers delayed their payments, so that an exceptionally large amount came in at the last minute.

Of the total tax levy for the year $399,713.47, several thousand dollars as usual, remain unpaid. Tax payments, plus a fine of two percent, will be received at the city's treasurer's office until March 20, when all tax money and records are turned over to the coutny treasurer. After that date delinquents will still have an opportunity to make their payment at the court house until June 12, when the annual tax sale will be held.

REPRESENTS COMPANY HERE

Henry Horton of Chicago has been appointed representative of the Thomas J. Webb Coffee Company for this territory.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Korsmoe of Ashland who recently moved here are now comfortably located in one of the new apartments in the F. W. Kruger home at 864 Third street south.

Goods made by convict laborers in Wisconsin will have to bear a label with the words "convict made", with name of institution, under a bill by Assemblyman E. H. Killian of Watertown, which was reported for passage by the committee on commerce and manufacture yesterday.

The committee recommended indefinite postponement of a bill by Assemblyman Holly of Kewaunee, which would require all shoes sold in the state to bear a label telling the kind of leather in counter, heel and outer soles and what other articles were used in the manufacture of the shoe.

DRASTIC REVENUE BILL ADOPTED BY RECORD MAJORITY

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis., The Dahl general income tax bill, estimated to raise nearly $16,000,000 from incomes in Wisconsin, was engrossed by the assembly this afternoon, 80 to 17.

This drastic revenue measure, sweeping through the lower house with an unprecedented majority, indicated the disposition of that body to readjust the tax burden in the state.

Cut High Exemption

One amendment was adopted to the bill by the assembly. This change places the exemption on income taxes as proposed by the measure, back to $800 for single persons, $1200 for married persons and $200 additional for each child.

Coming to the floor of the assembly with the unanimous recommendation of the taxation committee, the Dahl bill was adopted with very little effort. It is declared that the bill will meet real opposition in the Senate.

Rates are Boosted

By its action the assembly approved a general increase in rates on individual incomes to one percent on the first $1,000 of taxable income and ranging up to 20 percent on incomes over $75,000. A flat rate of six percent on all corporation earnings is called for.

The Dahl bill repeals the personal property tax offset to the income tax, adding $5,000,000 annually to the tax returns; repeals the secrecy clause to the income tax; repeals the mill tax now imposed on university, normals and common schools, and the surtax on incomes to support the teachers retirement fund.

Representative Royce voted for engrossment.

Kaltenecker To Continue In Retail Shoe Business

Effective today, March 1, the partnership of B. O. Smith and F. J. Kaltenecker, who have conducted a retail shoe store in this city for the past few years, is dissolved and the new store will continue under the management of F. J. Kaltenecker who has purchased Mr. Smith's share in the old firm.

According to Mr. Kaltenecker, his store will continue to carry the Nunn-Bush line of men's shoes and the Utz & Dunn and G. Edwin Smith lines of women's shoes. In addition a complete line of Black Cat Hosiery will be carried for men, women and children.

In speaking of the firm's new policy Mr. Kaltenecker said: "We figure on doing business on a strictly cash basis. This, however, will not affect good accounts now on our books. In carrying out our business relations with our patrons we will endeavor to fulfill our slogan which is to sell only "Style Shoes of Quality."

George J. Bronson will remain with the firm as salesman while Charles E. Johnson will continue to operate the repair shop.

New Automobile Tax Not Fair Assemblyman Says

Madison, Wis.—Assemblyman Anton Holly, Tisch Mills, will fight provisions of the new automobile tax bill now before the taxation committee.

The bill as it now stands would tax automobiles according to weight and horsepower with the belief that the weight of a car is relative to the amount of damage it does to the road.

Holly contends that the statement of relativity of weight to damage is false because of the difference of the size of tires. He explains that a light car with a small tire will do just as much damage to highways as a car twice the size with a tire of double the circumference.

WEATHER

Mostly overcast and somewhat unsettled tonight and Friday; warmer east and south portion tonight.

DELEGATES PLAN DEVELOPMENT OF LAKE TRANSPORT

(By Associated Press)

Manitowoc, Wis., Mar. 1.—Transportation problems confronting lake port cities and opportunities for development of shipping are occupying the attention of nearly 100 representatives of 65 harbor towns meeting here today at a Great Lakes conference to formulate plans for the development of water highways.

Two subjects are of chief concern to the delegates: the opening of routes to the sea from Great Lakes and the lowering of lake levels thru the diversion of water by the Chicago drainage canal. Both were taken up by speakers who dwelt upon their importance and upon the action that might be taken to further the interests of the port cities.

It is expected that as a result of the Great Lakes conference a permanent organization of city representatives will be affected. This organization will be devoted to the formulation and furtherance of plans for developing lake shipping.

Waterway Vital Need

The Great Lakes-St. Lawrence deep waterway project was described by Frank Kerwin managing director of the Green Bay Association of Commerce, speaking before the conference today as "the most important project of this generation," needed to improve transportation in the country.

"Without this waterway to supplement our rail transportation plant, we are indeed facing a most gloomy prospect," the speaker declared. He suggested two remedies both of which in his opinion would aid the Middle West and nation in solving the problem of getting its products to market, one, to "call off alleged statesmen and give the railroads a fighting chance," the other to "develop inland waterways not with a view to supplanting, but with the idea of supplementing the railroads."

Deep Canal Needed

Mr. Kerwin expressed doubt whether barge canals could be constructed and operated successfully. Deep waterways he declared to afford the one means of meeting transportation difficulties and opening the Great lakes to ocean commerce.

"The development of deep waterways is an entirely different problem from that of the development of barge canals," he said. "In our Great Lakes route we have the most perfect transportation system known to man. The Great lakes route affors the highest expression of the transportation art. There is handled annually on these lakes approximately 200,000,000 tons of freight. This tremendous volume of traffic is handled in an efficient, expeditious and dependable manner at rates lower than those obtaining eleswhere.

Situation Ideal

"We have in the Great lakes route the most perfect coordination of rail and water transportation. We have an ideal transporation situation and are provided with loads in both directions."

Mr. Kerwin spoke of a danger which he said was threatening due to regulations of the Wisconsin railroad commission and other bodies which permit shipment by rail of coal into this territory. He urged a change in the present rates on coal shipments from the docks inland.

"I urge," the speaker concluded, "that all interests strive for an enlightened public opinion. We should consider the waterway problem not so much as a railroad problem, but rather as a transportation problem. We should cooperate until it hurts in an effort to save transportation whenever possible and we should do all in our power to bring about a sane use of every transportation facility we have available."

Senate Votes For Repeal Of Tax Secrecy

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis., Mar. 1—Complete repeal of the secrecy clause to the state income tax law was voted today by the Wisconsin senate, 22 to 9, when it sent to engrossment the Severson bill, opening the income returns to the public.

A substitute amendment to permit only state, county and local officials to have access to the income tax information, was indefinitely postponed, 19 to 12.

Passage is Certain

Passage of the bill, sweeping all restrictions from inspection of income statements, is accepted as a certainty in the assembly. This will mean fulfillment of a platform pledge which served as a central issue in the last political campaign.

The fight against the proposal on the floor of the Senate centered about the substitute amendment offered by Senator W. L. Smith of Neillsville. This was classed as a "fraud and cheat" by Senator Severson, author of the original bill. He pointed out that Governor Blaine vetoed a similar measure passed at the special session in March, 1922.

Madison, Wis. March 1—Elmer S. Hall, Wisconsin conservation commissioner, went before the joint finance committee of the legislature today with a request that the appropriation of his department for the coming biennium be cut $172,495 below the request for funds made by his predecessor in office.

This cut, Mr. Hall said, could be made by the committee without interfering in any way with the conservation activities of his department. He expressed the opinion that the conservation activities of the state could be carried on even more efficiently than in the past, with a much smaller appropriation.

The orginal request for the coming year had ben set at $438,000 by the former commissioner. Mr. Hall asked a cut of $94,015. The request for 1925 was $404,000 and the new request reduced that amount by $78,000.

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis., Mar. 1—Determined opposition against the state blind bureau was expressed yesterday when the committee on public welfare heard a bill introduced by Assemblyman Alex C. Ruffing of Milwaukee to abolish the bureau and pension law and appropriation, and create a new pension system.

Dr. G. Hogue and Frank Klode of Milwaukee, members of the bureau spoke against the proposed legislation and declared the bureau had not been established long enough to show any appreciable results.

Although action by the committee was deferred until this afternoon proponents of the bill declared that it would pass the assembly regardless of the committee's recommendations.

The Ruffing bill would increase the pension allowed blind persons to not less than $180 per year, nor more than $360, and for blind and deaf to not less than $360 annually nor more than $720.

The Senate voted for abolition of the municipal court in Milwaukee and to create two additional branches of the circuit court, transferring to the branches the duties of the tribunal to be abolished.

Aid For Farmers

With little opposition the upper house drafted a proposed amendment to the constitution which would permit the state to incur indebtedness in order to establish a farm loan system. This constitutional amendment, passed in the 1921 session and accepted by the assembly, will go to the voters in 1924.

Officers Abolished

Comes In Like A Lamb; Will It Go Out Like a Lion?

"Well we're in for it now! Anytime you see old March coming in like a lamb it's a dead pipe cinch that she'll go out roaring like a lion with the wind howling and whistling 'round the corners and the ice and snow remaing long after the spring plowing should be in" says old timer who has been "around these parts for nigh onto forty years, I reckon."

Old As History

The fact is that weather predictions are as old as history, some dating back to the age of king Tut and his followers. For centuries ground hog weather prophets have been watching the antics of the little animal in hopes of forecasting the weather. If the sun was out on February 2 farmers would delay their spring plowing and planting in fear of running into a frost or cold spell and in this way crops would be delayed and lessened.

Another prediction was: "If it rains on Saint Swithin's Day it will rain on each of the succeeding forty days". All of these prophecies are merely guesswork yet they have a tendency to be believed by large numbers, sometimes to their detriment.

A few years ago when a large comet was supposed to visit this portion a great many people believed that the world would end. It was prophecied that the comet would come so close to the earth that the flames from its tail would envelope the earth with flames. Those who believed this thery sold their homes and farms and in some cases "went out on a right good time" to enjoy themselves before the dreaded event would occur.

Modern Methods Superior

The point is that modern weather predictions are vastly superior to the old prophecies. The U. S. Weather Bureau, which was started in 1870 as a service for sailors and shippers, is superior in every way to the old hand me down traditional prophecies that are anything but reliable.

In the period from 1915 to 1919 the weather and temperature forecasts were 88.4 per cent correct and in most cases differed greatly from the "forecasts" of old time weather prophets who obtained their information from old traditional beliefs that have been proven obsolete by U. S. Weather Bureau methods.

Regardless of the lamb like tendency that was evidenced by weather conditions today it is not assured that the last few days of the month will go out like a lion as this prophecy has failed in times gone by and stands a good chance of failing again.

Roads Breaking; Prospects Good For Auto Show

Prospects for the coming Central Wisconsin Automotive show as far as attendance is concerned grow brigter each day on account of the breaking up of the roads due to the extremely warm weather now prevalent. While county highway and state highway officials promise nothing this week, they predict that next week early practically all the roads in the county, at least the main travelled roads, concrete and patrolled system roads, will be opened to permit comparatively easy travel if the various towns cooperate in taking care of the badly drifted portions, as has already been done in the town of Cranmoor and other sections of the county.

Point Dealers Anxious

Fred Ragan, manager of the Automotive Show stated that Stevens Point Motor Dealers were willing to cooperate and stated that they would bring car load after car load of people from their city over Route 66 if this weather continues for another two or three days. They predicted the big interurban bus would also come through shortly and that once a beaten path were made in the drifted portions that the rest of the road would be easy to negotiate.

The decorations for the show are now enroute to this city according to Manager Ragan who has received notice of shipment. Practically everything is in readiness to start the decorating and arranging the displays which will commence about Tuesday of next week.

TAX PAYMENTS SMASH RECORDS

$228,000 PAID INTO CITY TREASURY DURING LAST TWO DAYS OF LEGAL PERIOD; USUAL AMOUNT OUTSTANDING

Two record breaking days, Tuesday and Wednesday, during which $228,000.48 in taxes, or practically two-thirds of the total amount, were paid in to City Treasurer Joe Norton at his office in the city hall, brought the percentage of city taxes paid or time up to the usual average at the closing of the alloted period for making payments last night. Just how much remains outstanding on which penalties will have to be paid has not yet been computed; but it is estimated that the total will not run above that of other years.

A large part of the taxes paid the last two days were those of corporations and other large stockholders who regularly withhold their payments until close to the expiration of the legal period. In addition to these however, many of the smaller taxpayers delayed their payments, so that an exceptionally large amount came in at the last minute.

Of the total tax levy for the year $399,713.47, several thousand dollars as usual, remain unpaid. Tax payments, plus a fine of two percent, will be received at the city's treasurer's office until March 20, when all tax money and records are turned over to the coutny treasurer. After that date delinquents will still have an opportunity to make their payment at the court house until June 12, when the annual tax sale will be held.

REPRESENTS COMPANY HERE

Goods made by convict laborers in Wisconsin will have to bear a label with the words "convict made" with name of institution, under a bill by Assemblyman E. H. Killian of Watertown, which was reported for passage by the committee on commerce and manufacture yesterday.

The committee recommended indefinite postponement of a bill by Assemblyman Holly of Kewaunee, which would require all shoes sold in the state to bear a label telling the kind of leather in counter, heel and outer soles and what other articles were used in the manufacture of the shoe.

DRASTIC REVENUE BILL ADOPTED BY RECORD MAJORITY

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis., The Dahl general income tax bill, estimated to raise nearly $16,000,000 from incomes in Wisconsin, was engrossed by the assembly this afternoon, 80 to 17.

This drastic revenue measure, sweeping through the lower house with an unprecedented majority, indicated the disposition of that body to readjust the tax burden in the state.

Cut High Exemption

One amendment was adopted to the bill by the assembly. This change places the exemption on income taxes as proposed by the measure, back to $800 for single persons, $1200 for married persons and $200 additional for each child.

Coming to the floor of the assembly with the unanimous recommendation of the taxation committee, the Dahl bill was adopted with very little effort. It is declared that the bill will meet real opposition in the Senate.

Rates are Boosted

By its action the assembly approved a general increase in rates on individual incomes to one percent on the first $1,000 of taxable income and ranging up to 20 percent on incomes over $75,000. A flat rate of six percent on all corporation earnings is called for.

The Dahl bill repeals the personal property tax offset to the income tax, adding $5,000,000 annually to the tax returns; repeals the secrecy clause to the income tax; repeals the mill tax now imposed on university, normals and common schools, and the surtax on incomes to support the teachers retirement fund.

Representative Royce voted for engrossment.

Kaltenecker To Continue In Retail Shoe Business

Effective today, March 1, the partnership of B. O. Smith and F. J. Kaltenecker, who have conducted a retail shoe store in this city for the past few years, is dissolved and the new store will continue under the management of F. J. Kaltenecker who has purchased Mr. Smith's share in the old firm.

According to Mr. Kaltenecker, his store will continue to carry the Nunn-Bush line of men's shoes and the Utz & Dunn and G. Edwin Smith lines of women's shoes. In addition a complete line of Black Cat Hosiery will be carried for men, women and children.

In speaking of the firm's new policy Mr. Kaltenecker said: "We figure on doing business on a strictly cash basis. This, however, will not affect good accounts now on our books. In carrying out our business relations with our patrons we will endeavor to fulfill our slogan which is to sell only "Style Shoes of Quality."

George J. Bronson will remain with the firm as salesman while Charles E. Johnson will continue to operate the repair shop.

New Automobile Tax Not Fair Assemblyman Says

Madison, Wis.—Assemblyman Anton Holly, Tisch Mills, will fight provisions of the new automobile tax bill now before the taxation committee.

The bill as it now stands would tax automobiles according to weight and horsepower with the belief that the weight of a car is relative to the amount of damage it does to the road.

Holly contends that the statement of relativity of weight to damage is false because of the difference of the size of tires. He explains that a light car with a small tire will do just as much damage to highways as a car twice the size with a tire of double the circumference.

DAIRYING EFFICIENCY

From the point of view of one who never milked a cow in his life, the benefits to the dairyman of membership in a cow testing association seem so obvious that it seems strange that every herd owner does not take advantage of the first opportunity to join such an organization.

Testing of dairy cows for promotion is merely an application to Wisconsin's geratest industry of a principle that has been successfully applied in other industries for years. Practically every manufacturing establishment of any consequence has a system by which it obtains a more or less accurate check upon the producing efficiency of both employes and machines used in productive work. Thus incapable or lazy workmen and out of date of inefficient machines are weeded out and the organization is kept on the most profitable basis possible.

While the dairy industry and farming in general have been slow to take advantage of modern and scientific methods of production and selling, there is apparently a change coming about at this time which we are confident will result in placing agriculture upon a plane of stability and profit comparable to other industries involving a similar investment in capital, brains, and brawn.

Wood county farmers are placing themselves in the vanguard in this movement and will reap the reward which is due them for their enterprise and progressivism. The record made by the Vesper Cow Testing association in its first month is outlined in another column. Similar work is being carried on at Rudolph and at Marshfield, and within the next few weeks testing will be commenced in the newly organized Nasonville association. If County Agent R. A. Peterson is successful in carrying out his program for the year, there will soon be associations in Arpin, Auburndale, Pittsville and Babcock, and Sherry and Milladore.

Work of this sort deserves the support of every citizen of thee county, for it means not only increased prosperity to the farmers, but for the whole county as well. The dairy industry carried Wisconsin through the depression years just passing with the least of individual hardship and disruption of business suffered by any state in the union. Placing of the dairy industry upon a better basis will not only bring increased prosperity to everyone, but will also furnish even better insurance against depression.

JUST A FRIENDLY LIFT

Is Wisconsin Rapids neglecting the farmer?

It has been the policy of Wisconsin Rapids to cater to the farm trade from the surrounding country. Local merchants desire to obtain the products from the nearby farms and they also very much desire to have the farmers purchase what goods they need from the stores in this city and not have the mails loaded with goods from the large mail order houses when the goods might be obtained here.

To obtain this trade and establish the market for the farmers' goods great amounts of money have been expended to construct good roads and a great deal more [illegible] are contemplating. What is go[illegible] brought

What [illegible] such as they may [illegible] for the farmer to bring [illegible] horses to this city [illegible] of sleighs [illegible] too deep for wagons. When he reaches the city he finds it impossible to travel with a load across the wagon bridge owing to the lack of snow.

The point is that Wisconsin Rapids should provide for such emergencies by having the trucks now being employed by the city [illegible] the summer months on hand to help the farmers across with their loads.

Such an act would tend to create on the part of the farmers a spirit of friendliness that would be hard to break down because of the human nature to want to do something for somebody that does things for you.

That employer may make it a condition of employment that employes refrain from membership in trade unions is the substance of a decision rendered recently by the supreme court of Massachusetts.

VESPER LEADING CATTLE SHIPPING CENTER IN COUNTY

COMMUNITY GAINING REPUTATION AS HOME OF GOOD STOCK; TEST ASSOCIATIONS HAS GOOD MONTH

BY R. A. PETERSON
County Agricultural Agent

That Vesper is developing into one of the leading dairy centers of Wisconsin is attested to by its continued sale of good dairy cattle at good prices. Without question more carloads of dairy cattle have been shipped from Vesper in the past year than from any other point in the county. The buyers always come back for more which proves that the quality of the cattle that Vesper dairymen are developing is of the producing kind.

Tests Show Quality

The quality of Vesper cattle is further supported in the report of the Vesper Cow Testing association by the tester, E. O. Wellip, for the first month's work. Sixty-two cows produced over forty pounds of butter fat in the month. The high cow for the month, Johanna, a purebred Holstein owned by Epa DeBoer produced 1812 pounds of milk, testing 4.3 per cent, containing 77.9 pounds of butterfat. Johanna was high cow in the Arpin Association a year ago and holds the County Cow Testing association yearly record of 971 pounds of butterfat. Mr. DeBoer's herd of seven cows had the high herd average for the month with an average production of 47.1 pounds of butterfat. The Guernsey herd of Chas. Tomfohrde comes in for a close second, fifteen cows having an average production of 44 pounds of butterfat. Dry cows were ommitted in preparing herd averages. The five high herd averages are as follows:

1. Epa DeBoer, seven registered Holstein averaged 1,291.2 pounds of milk testing 3.7, or 47.1 pounds of fat; 2. Chas. Tomfohrde, 15 registered Guernseys averaged 923.6 pounds of milk testing 4.77, or 44.0 pounds of fat; Henry Gluesing, eight grade and registered Holsteins averaged 1,238.1 pounds of milk testing 3.46, or 42.8 pounds fat; 4. Purl McKenzie, eleven grade and registered Holsteins averaged 1,211.9 pounds of milk testing 3.35, or 40.7 pounds butter fat; 5. Tenpas Brothers, twenty registered Holsteins averaged 1,184.9 pounds of milk testing 3.3, or 39.2 pounds fat.

Over 2,000 Mark

John Dykstra has the distinction of being the only member of the association that had a cow produce over 2,000 pounds of milk during the month. Albert H. Stake had the highest herd average test. His seven Guernseys average 5.27 per cent.

At present there are 429 cows in the association—324 are milking and 105 are dry. A fraction over 19 per cent of the cows in milk made over 40 lbs. fat. A very creditable feature of the Vesper association is that all herds are headed by purebred registered sires.

Since the list of forty pound cows is too long for publication, the names of the owners and the number of cows of this class that each had during the month are listed below:

Tenpas Brothers, 10; Chas. Tomfohrde, 8; Purl McKenzie, 7; Arthur Osenga, 5; Epa DeBoer, 5; Henry Gluesing, 4; C. A. Fox, 2; A. P. Sear, 2; Albert Behling, 1; R. R. Steenbeck, 2; Jake Huinegtse, 1; J. R. Termaat, 2; F. W. Jones, 3; J. B. Ostenmeyer, 3; G. A. Bussener, 1; John Dykstra, 1; John Schouten, 2; Albert Stake, 3.

The greatest value of the testing association work comes to the individual member in the added interest that he is moved to take in his herd and in the individual cows because of the definite knowledge that he gets relative to the production of each. Cooperation with the tester brings about better feeding methods. The high records that are made are incidental to the above and a credit to you and the association. [illegible]

Action On Guard Bill Delayed After Hot Senate Debate

Madison, Wis.—Efforts of conservative senators to force a vote in the upper house Wednesday on the Hirsch bill to abolish the Wisconsin national guard were blocked after an hour's debate during which Senator Timothy Burke, Green Bay, by inference, challenged the Americanism of that body.

When the bill came up for consideration, Senator J. J. Hirsch, offered a substitute amendment which would cut off the appropriation for the state militia. Stalwarts interpreted the Socialist senator's action as a move to delay a vote on his bill until the Polakowski bill, a companion measure, was disposed of by the senate committee on state affairs.

Is Wisconsin America?

"I am ready to go to bat on this issue at once," declared Senator George B. Skogmo, conservative. "I don't know just what the substitute amendment is but I'm against it; let's fight this matter out while we're in a fighting mood."

"I want to find out whether Wisconsin is a European colony or whether it is an American state," declared Senator Burke.

"That has nothing to do with the question," declared Senator M. W. Heck, LaFollette Progressive. "A senator has offered a substitute amendment and now the rules the whole matter should go over. There's no use of having a row is twice on the issue."

"I think I am an American," declared Senator A. F. Culey. "I am going to vote against abolishing the guard, but despite the challenge I move here as to our Americanism, I am against acting on the Hirsch bill now."

Motion Lost

"My only plea was that inasmuch as it was necessary for the governor of this state to issue a message to save the guard, which I do, in a patriotic and gentlemanly manner, we should lose no time in setting the country right on this matter," said Senator Burke. "If my motion to suspend the rules and take immediate action was a crime, I'll withdraw it."

The motion to suspend the rules, which required a two-thirds vote, was lost, 17 to 13.

Both the Hirsch and Pelakowski bills will be voted upon next Wednesday in the senate.

THE GREEN-EYED ACCOMPLICE

BY E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Copyright, 1922, by E. Phillips Oppenheim
Arrgt. NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SIR NORMAN GREYES, formerly of Scotland Yard, joins the chase of MICHAEL SAYERS, famous criminal. Sayers, masquerading as Thomas Pugsley, broker, is recognized by Greyes who sends a police inspector to accost Sayers on the street. Sayers shoots the inspector and escapes. Returning to his home, Michael questions his maid, JANET SOALE. Later at the golf club he finds Greyes seated in the grill.

Known at the club as James Stanfield and suitably disguised, Michael is introduced to Sir Norman. The two men play a game of golf and their attention is attracted by the continued barking of a dog. Upon investigating they find the body of a man shot through the forehead. Greyes recognizes the man as a detective employed to shadow Thomas Pugsley.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

He changed his clothes and went off presently for his round of golf. When I went to his room to brush and press the clothes which he had taken off, I found, however, that he had placed them in a drawer and apparently locked it. The discovery, coming on top of many others, gave me food for thought. I resolved to watch the next morning's newspapers. I was becoming more and more clear to me that there was something in my master's manner of life which he was anxious to conceal from the world. I was the more convinced of this when I saw that in the top drawer, which he had opened to take out a tie, he had concealed a small revolver, loaded in all six chambers.

A merchant with offices in the city and a country cottage for golf, does not carry a loaded revolver about with him. My heart quickened with excitement as I picked it up and handled it. I forgot my master's indifference. I ignored the fact that, although I am well enough to look upon, and that my face and figure have won me more admirers than I could count on the fingers of both hands, he had never cast a second glance in my direction. I said which are burning me up night and day, he would throw off his mask of coldness and mystery, would give me his faith in myself if I chose to make the first advances. I have never made them to any man, but I have an instinct. I believe that he is cold and unresponsive from habit. I believe that if I could make him understand the fires that place in his life which I crave.

I was loitering about his room, looking still at that closed drawer when to my amazement a man entered—a tall, weedy-looking person, with sunken cheeks and a straggling sandy mustache. I am not easily frightened, but it gave me a turn when he closed the door behind him.

"What do you want?" I asked sharply. "How dare you come up here?"

He looked at me earnestly. It was obvious that my first thought was a mistaken one. This was not one of the admirers whom I found it difficult sometimes to keep at arm's-length.

"Young woman," he said, "I am a police officer. You seem to be a sensible girl. Answer the questions which I ask, do not obstruct me in the course of my duty, and you will be rewarded."

I looked at him in silence for several moments. I do not think that I changed color or showed anything of the terror which clutched my heart. My master was in danger. All the time I stood there, I was thinking. How was I to help? How could I help?

"Your master returned here an hour or so ago," this man continued, "and has now gone off to play golf. I want the clothes which he wore when he came down."

"How do you know that he changed?" I asked.

"I saw him come in and I saw him go out," was the quiet reply. "This is his bedroom, is it not?"

"It is," I admitted.

"Then the clothes must be here. Where are they?"

"I do not know," I answered. "I was looking for them myself. I was just going into the bathroom next door to see if he had left them there."

He stepped back and entered the bathroom. He was only gone for a few seconds, but I found time to take the revolver from the drawer and to slip it into my loose pocket.

"The bath has not been used," he said a little shortly when he came back. "I should like you to stay with me while I search these drawers."

I made no objection, and he made a hasty search of the contents of the first two. When he came to the bottom one and found it locked, he gave vent to a little exclamation.

He made no bones for what he did, nor offered any apology. With an instrument which he carried in his pocket, he forced the lock and bent over the contents of the drawer. He was a man addicted, I should imagine, to silence, but I heard him muttering to himself at what he found. When he stood up, there was a smile of triumph upon his lips.

"What time do you expect your master back?" he inquired.

"I do not know," I answered. "He was lunching at the golf club and playing a round afterward. About five o'clock, I should think."

He walked to the window and stood looking out over the links. I too looked out. In the far distance we could see two men playing.

"Do you know the links?" he asked.

"Very well," I told him. "I have lived here all my life."

"What hole are they playing now?"

"The seventh."

"What green is that just opposite?"

"The seventeenth."

"Where is the tee for the eighteenth?"

"Just out of sight, underneath the trees."

He nodded, apparently well content. His eyes lingered upon me. I saw a look in his face to which I was perfectly well accustomed. He had discovered that in my quiet way I was good-looking. He came a little nearer to me.

"Are you fond of your master?" he asked.

"I see very little of him," I answered. "He gives no trouble."

"Do you know that you are rather a pretty girl?" he ventured, coming nearer still.

"I am always very careful of strangers who tell me so," I retorted, taking a step backward.

He laughed.

"You'll give me just one kiss for this?" he begged, holding out a silver crown. "You're an intelligent girl, and you've told me just what I wanted to know."

I looked at him curiously. If it were true that I was an intelligent girl, it was scarcely a compliment which I could return. For a police officer, he must have been a hopeless idiot.

"I don't allow anyone to kiss me," I objected, pushing the coin away.

"You must put up with it just for once," he insisted.

I scarcely believed that he was in earnest—and for the first time in my life a man kissed me upon the lips. I can find no words even now to describe the fury which was born in my heart against him. I feared even to speak, lest my passionate words might carry some warning to him of the things which were in my heart. He seemed perfectly indifferent, however, and in a few minutes he strolled out and made his way across the garden to the little wood. I took up my master's field glasses and satisfied myself that he was still a long distance away. I waited for a quarter of an hour. Then I took another path which led into the shrubbery, and made my way cautiously to where the man was standing with folded arms, leaning against a tree.

I drew nearer and nearer. I am light footed and I have even been called stealthy. It was part of my early training as a parlor-maid to make no noise when I moved. So I stole to within a few yards of him, unperceived and unheard. It was a queer, gusty November day, with tumbled masses of clouds in the sky, and a wind which bent the tops of the sparse trees and brought the leaves rustling down. Soon there would be company for the creeping and crawling insects to whom winter meant death. And afterward! I had a vivid little mind-picture of a crowded court-room, of the judge who might try me and the jury who might pronounce my fate. For a moment I shivered. Then I thought of that loath-some caress. I thought of my master, and I smiled. If he knew, he would thank me. Some day he would know!

I was so close that I think my victim felt the breath from my lips, or the sensation of my approaching body. He turned quickly around, and I saw his eyes wide open with apprehension. He would have shrunk away, but he seemed paralyzed; and as he stood there I shot him. He swayed on his feet an instant, they stumbled and slumped to the ground, I listened for a moment. Then I took the path back to the house. I had finished what I came out to do.

* * *

Michael Carries on the Story

My round of golf with the man who was the declared hunter of my life and whatever, although I must confess that the first sight of Norman Greyes seated in the club grill, only and hour or so after he had witnessed the abortive attempt to arrest me, was something of a shock. I came to the conclusion, however, that his presence here was accidental and in no way connected with that harmless and respectable inhabitant of the neighborhood, James Stanfield. I played golf steadily and and with success. It was not until that startling discovery, close to the eighteenth tee, that my equanimity was seriously disturbed. As we looked down upon the dead body of the plain-clothes policeman whom I had last seen in Woollerton Road, we both recognized him. No hint of anything of the sort, however, escaped from my lips.

After the first few seconds of stupefaction, Greyes naturally took charge of the affair. He set the caddies to search all around for a weapon, and begged me to summon my gardener, or anyone who might be of assistance. I called for Coale in vain, however, and remembering that he had asked leave to visit his brother at Mayford, I abandoned the quest. Subsequently, one of the men working on the course appeared, and we carried the body into my tool-shed. Greyes locked the door and telephoned for the police and doctor.

"You will excuse my apparent officiousness," he said, "but I once had some connection with Scotland Yard."

"There is nothing to excuse," I assured him. "I am only too thankful that you happened to be here. Do you think that it is a case of suicide?"

"I have reasons for doubting it," he replied, "apart from which, if it were suicide, the weapon would have been found. As the event happened so close to your house and actually on your path, Mr. Stanfield, you will not mind, I am sure, if I question your servants."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SIR NORMAN GREYES, formerly of Scotland Yard, joins the chase of MICHAEL SAYERS, famous criminal. Sayers, masquerading as Thomas Pugsley, broker, is recognized by Greyes who sends a police inspector to accost Sayers on the street. Sayers shoots the inspector and escapes. Returning to his home, Michael questions his maid,

Known at the club as James Stanfield and suitably disguised, Michael is introduced to Sir Norman. The two men play a game of golf and their attention is attracted by the continued barking of a dog. Upon investigating they find the body of a man shot through the forehead. Greyes recognizes the man as a detective employed to shadow Thomas Pugsley.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

He changed his clothes and went off presently for his round of golf. When I went to his room to brush and press the clothes which he had taken off, I found, however, that he had placed them in a drawer and apparently locked it. The discovery, coming on top of many others, gave me food for thought. I resolved to watch the next morning's newspapers. I was becoming more and more clear to me that there was something in my master's manner of life which he was anxious to conceal from the world. I was the more convinced of this when I saw that in the top drawer, which he had opened to take out a tie, he had concealed a small revolver, loaded in all six chambers.

A merchant with offices in the city and a country cottage for golf, does not carry a loaded revolver about with him. My heart quickened with excitement as I picked it up and handled it. I forgot my master's indifference. I ignored the fact that, although I am well enough to look upon, and that my face and figure have won me more admirers than I could count on the fingers of both hands, he had never cast a second glance in my direction. I still which are burning me up night and day, he would throw off his mask of coldness and mystery, would give me had faith in myself if I chose to make the first advances. I have never made them to any man, but I have an instinct. I believe that he is cold and unresponsive from habit. I believe that if I could make him understand the fires that place in his life which I crave.

I was loitering about his room, looking still at that closed drawer when to my amazement a man entered—a thin, weedy-looking person, with sunken cheeks and a straggling sandy mustache. I am not easily frightened, but it gave me a turn when he closed the door behind him.

"What do you want?" I asked sharply. "How dare you come up here?"

He looked at me earnestly. It was obvious that my first thought was a mistaken one. This was not one of the admirers whom I found it difficult sometimes to keep at arm's-length.

"Young woman," he said, "I am a police officer. You seem to be a sensible girl. Answer the questions which I ask, do not obstruct me in the course of my duty, and you will be rewarded."

I looked at him in silence for several moments. I do not think that I changed color or showed anything of the terror which clutched my heart. My master was in danger. All the time I stood there, I was thinking. How was I to help? How could I help?

"Your master returned here an hour or so ago," this man continued, "and has now gone off to play golf. I want the clothes which he wore when he came down."

"How do you know that he changed?" I asked.

"I saw him come in and I saw him go out," was the quiet reply. "This is his bedroom, is it not?"

"It is," I admitted.

"Then the clothes must be here. Where are they?"

"I do not know," I answered. "I was looking for them myself. I was just going into the bathroom next door to see if he had left them there."

He stepped back and entered the bathroom. He was only gone for a few seconds, but I found time to take the revolver from the drawer and to slip it into my loose pocket.

"The bath has not been used," he said a little shortly when he came back. "I should like you to stay with me while I search these drawers."

I made no objection, and he made a hasty search of the contents of the firsttwo. When he came to the bottom one and found it locked, he gave vent to a little exclamation.

He made no bones for what he did, nor offered any apology. With an instrument which he carried in his pocket, he forced the lock and bent over the contents of the drawer. He was a man addicted, I should imagine, to silence, but I heard him muttering to himself at what he found. When he stood up, there was a smile of triumph upon his lips.

"What time do you expect your master back?" he inquired.

"I do not know," I answered. "He was lunching at the golf club and playing a round afterward. About five o'clock, I should think."

He walked to the window and stood looking out over the links. I too looked out. In the far distance we could see two men playing.

"Do you know the links?" he asked.

"Very well," I told him. "I have lived here all my life."

"What hole are they playing now?"

"The seventh."

"What green is that just opposite?"

"The seventeenth."

"Where is the tee for the eighteenth?"

"Just out of sight, underneath the trees."

He nodded, apparently well content. His eyes lingered upon me. I saw a look in his face to which I was perfectly well accustomed. He had discovered that in my quiet way I was good-looking. He came a little nearer to me.

"Are you fond of your master?" he asked.

"I see very little of him," I answered. "He gives no trouble."

"Do you know that you are rather a pretty girl?" he ventured, coming nearer still.

"I am always very careful of strangers who tell me so," I retorted, taking a step backward.

He laughed.

"You'll give me just one kiss for this?" he begged, holding out a silver crown. "You're an intelligent girl, and you've told me just what I wanted to know."

I looked at him curiously. If it were true that I was an intelligent girl, it was scarcely a compliment which I could return. For a police officer, he must have been a hopeless idiot.

"I don't allow anyone to kiss me," I objected, pushing the coin away.

"You must put up with it just for once," he insisted.

I scarcely believed that he was in earnest—and for the first time in my life a man kissed me upon the lips. I can find no words even now to describe the fury which was born in my heart against him. I feared even to speak, lest my passionate words might carry some warning to him of the things which were in my heart. He seemed perfectly indifferent, however, and in a few minutes he strolled out and made his way across the garden to the little wood. I took up my caster's field glasses and satisfied myself that he was still a long distance away. I waited for a quarter of an hour. Then I took another path which led into the shrubbery, and made my way cautiously to where the man was standing with folded arms, leaning against a tree.

I drew nearer and nearer. I am light footed and I have even been called stealthy. It was part of my early training as a parlor-maid to make no noise when I moved. So I stole to within a few yards of him, unperceived and unheard. It was a queer, gusty November day, with tumbled masses of clouds in the sky, and a wind which bent the tops of the sparse trees and brought the leaves rustling down. Soon there would be company for the creeping and crawling insects to whom winter meant death. And afterward! I had a vivid little mind-picture of a crowded court-room, of the judge who might try me and the jury who might pronounce my fate. For a moment I shivered. Then I thought of that lost caress. I thought of my master, and I smiled. If he knew, he would thank me. Some day he would know!

I was so close that I think my victim felt the breath from my lips or the sensation of my approaching body. He turned quickly around, and I saw his eyes wide open with apprehension. He would have shrunk away, but he seemed paralyzed; and as he stood there I shot him. He swayed on his feet an instant, they stumbled and slumped to the ground. I listened for a moment. Then I took the path back to the house. I had finished what I came out to do.

Michael Carries on the Story

My round of golf with the man who was the declared hunter of my life and whatever, although I must confess that the first sight of Norman Greyes seated in the club grill, only and hour or so after he had witnessed the abortive attempt to arrest me, was something of a shock. I came to the conclusion, however, that his presence here was accidental and in no way connected with that harmless and respectable inhabitant of the neighborhood, James Stanfield. I played golf steadily and and with success. It was not until that startling discovery, close to the eighteenth tee, that my equanimity was seriously disturbed. As we looked down upon the dead body of the plain-clothes policeman whom I had last seen in Woollerton Road, we both recognized him. No hint of anything of the sort, however, escaped from my lips.

After the first few seconds of stupefaction, Greyes naturally took charge of the affair. He set the caddies to search all around for a weapon, and begged me to summon my gardener, or anyone who might be of assistance. I called for Coale in vain, however, and remembering that he had asked leave to visit his brother at Mayford, I abandoned the quest. Subsequently, one of the men working on the course appeared, and we carried the body into my tool-shed. Greyes locked the door and telephoned for the police and doctor.

"You will excuse my apparent of ciousness," he said, "but I once had some connection with Scotland Yard."

"There is nothing to excuse," I assured him. "I am only too thankful that you happened to be here. Do you think that it is a case of suicide?"

"I have reasons for doubting it," he replied, "apart from which, if it were suicide, the weapon would have been found. As the event happened so close to your house and actually on your path, Mr. Stanfield, you will not mind, I am sure, if I question your servants."

As the result of a new discovery, valuable by-products such as oil, motor spirit, and dyestuffs are being produced from coal slack. Each ton of slack yields thre gallons of motor spirit, about fifteen gallons of burning and lubricating oil, six thousand feet of gas, fourteen hundred weight of domestic fuel, and a quantity of suphate of ammonia. This domestic fuel is claimed to yield twice the heat energy of ordinary coal, and to burn without ash.

ANTONETTE AND MONICA GIVE GOOD ENTERTAINMENT

A very pleasing program was given at the Ideal Theater last evening. In addition to the regular movie, Antonette and Monica, two pretty young girls, gave a very good musical program including a number of musical and vocal numbers.
The two girls who are on the circuit from the New Palace, Minneapolis, the Palace, St. Paul and the Lubbiner & Trinz string in Chicago, gave a number of selections on the violin and piano, as well as harmony singing and whistling. Every number was very good and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large number of Ideal patrons. The program will be repeated again this evening.
The motion picture, Agnes Ayres in "The Ordeal" was one of Miss Ayres' great emotional pictures. She does some good acting, although not her best. The story is that of a young girl who marries without love in order to give a home to her brother and crippled sister. Her husband, who is very wealthy, dies, and leaves a will giving his fortune to his wife providing she never marries again. She takes her sister to Paris where she is cured by a great physician. The rest of the story has to do with the ingratitude and selfishness of her brother and sister, and her love for a rising young doctor, whom she cannot marry and still furnish her brother and sister with all the luxuries to which they have become accustomed. The play comes to a pleasing finish after a number of exciting scenes.

New Ku Klux Bill Will Hit All Masked Violence

Madison, Wis.—The new Ku Klux bill introduced in the assembly by Clinton Price, Mauston, would apply to all who committed misdeeds while wearing masks and would included masked gunmen and burglars and hold-up men, Assemblyman Price explained today.

"The aim of my bill is to drive all who violate laws while masked into the open", Assemblyman Price said. "There is no suitable law now and a person committing assault now while masked might only by liable to a charge of assaut. Under my bill he could be charged with assault while masked and would face a penalty up to 10 years in prison."

STOOD READY TO STAKE LAST CENT TO END TROUBLE

Dahlmen Says Troubles Were Driving Him To Desperation. Tanlac Again Proves Merit.

"Since taking Tanlac, I feel just as strong, healthy and energetic as I did twenty years ago—and that saying a great deal for I felt mighty lively in those days," declared Martin Dahlmen, 525 Cass St., Milwaukee, recently.

"Before getting Tanlac, I suffered from indigestion of the worst kind. My appetite failed me, and I ate so little I began to lose weight, but even that little hurt me terribly. I had awful headaches and pains in my back and was so nervous sometimes it was morning before I could get to sleep.

"I felt like staking my last dollar on anything that would give me back my old-time vigorous health, and that's just what Tanlac did. Besides that, it has built me up twelve pounds, I am eating and sleeping fine, and talk about energy! Why, a big rush of work is like play to me now. The best I can say for Tanlac is not half good enough."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35-million bottles sold—Advertisement.

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Mr. James H. Allen, of Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenrhu, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed druggists everywhere to dispense Allenrhu with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment. All druggists can supply you. —Adv.

As the result of a new discovery, valuable by-products such as oil, motor spirit, and dyestuffs are being produced from coal slack. Each ton of slack yields thre gallons of motor spirit, about fifteen gallons of burning and lubricating oil, six thousand feet of gas, fourteen hundred weight of domestic fuel, and a quantity of suphate of ammonia. This domestic fuel is claimed to yield twice the heat energy of ordinary coal, and to burn without ash.

ANTONETTE AND MONICA GIVE GOOD ENTERTAINMENT

A very pleasing program was given at the Ideal Theater last evening. In addition to the regular movie, Antonette and Monica, two pretty young girls, gave a very good musical program including a number of musical and vocal numbers.

The two girls who are on the circuit from the New Palace, Minneapolis, the Palace, St. Paul and the Lubbiner & Trinz string in Chicago, gave a number of selections on the violin and piano, as well as harmony singing and whistling. Every number was very good and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large number of Ideal patrons. The program will be repeated again this evening.

The motion picture, Agnes Ayres in "The Ordeal" was one of Miss Ayres' great emotional pictures. She does some good acting, although not her best. The story is that of a young girl who marries without love in order to give a home to her brother and crippled sister. Her husband, who is very wealthy, dies, and leaves a will giving his fortune to his wife providing she never marries again. She takes her sister to Paris where she is cured by a great physician. The rest of the story has to do with the ingratitude and selfishness of her brother and sister, and her love for a rising young doctor, whom she cannot marry and still furnish her brother and sister with all the luxuries to which they have become accustomed. The play comes to a pleasing finish after a number of exciting scenes.

"The Eclipse Of The Honeymoon" A Huge Success

Greeted by a small but enthusiastic audience the members of the cast of "The Eclipse of the Honeymoon," which was presented in the Port Edwards Auditorium Tuesday evening under the direction of Mrs. Anne Hocking Smith, a graduate of the Chicago School of Expression, more than covered themselves with glory in their presentation of the various parts.

From the time of the rise of the curtain until its fall the audience was kept in a continual state of laughter owing to the difficulties of the four bachelors who fell into the nets so ably spread by the four "young old maids," the Misses Hanman, Forstad, Hunter and Krause. From the time of the marriages until the end of the show the presentation was just one situation of clever comedy after another.

John Hill and Carlton Stamm as members of the bachelor four carried their parts exceedingly well as did Arthur Mulroy, Nekoosa, who was a scream as the butler.

According to members of the committee the attendance was a great disappointment as it was confidently expected that the turnout would be larger than what eventually attended. Many cases of sickness and the fact that the play was given during the Lenten season accounts for the small attendance, in the minds of members of the Parent-Teachers Association which sponsored the presentation.

Too Much Comfort Was Fatal To Crack Huskies

Berlin, N. H.—The crack team which Arthur T. Walker, of Wisconsin, drove to victory in the international dog race here last year is another up the trail of the North Pole. The huskies stood up under the hard going of the snow trails, but when they were headed at a show in Boston they developed distemper, and three of them had to be shot.

The troubles that beset the team, according to Walker, were the results of their show experience. "It is the law of the wild that a husky will die for personal distemper if he is housed," said he. "Most anything could happen that would happen to my team after it got."

Claim Location Of Grave Is No Longer A Secret

Honolulu, T. H.—The last resting place of Kamehameha I, Hawaii's first and greatest king, is known to three persons and the location was not a secret that perished with the deaths of the attendants at the monarch's funeral rites, as popularly believed, Frederick W. Beckley, Hawaiian historian, told the Hawaiian Historical society at its last meeting here.

Kamehameha, a warrior chief of the island of Hawaii, was the first to conquer all of islands in the group. He united them into a kingdom with himself as monarch. According to the popular legend his body was secreted after death and the attendants were sworn never to reveal the location. Kamehameha died in 1819 at the age of 83 years.

Three Know Location

"I myself have seen the place where Kamehameha's bones lie," Beckley told the society. "There are two other persons living today who know his last resting place. These are an old Hawaiian in the general service here, and an aged Hawaiian woman on the windward side of the island of Oahu. This information has been handed down through my family to the oldest son. It is a secret trust of honor and is not to be revealed. The common supposition that Kamehameha's remains were moved by King Kalakaua is false. Those were the bones of a lesser chief."

Beckley's statement, which aroused great interest, followed the reading of a paper on "The Passing of Kamehameha the Great," by Dr. W. D. Westervelt, authority in Hawaiian legends and history.

According to Westervelt, Kamehameha was the first Hawaiian chief who refused to permit the sacrifice of a human being in an attempt to save the chieftain's life. When relatives attempted to sacrifice a man to propitiate the gods to spare the king's life, Kamehameha forbade them saying, "The man belongs to the chief".

Westervelt said that Kamehameha's last words were "E na i wale no oukou i ka pono" (The right which I have done is cannot undo.)

The charge against Dan Barnett, also of violation of the prohibition act, was withdrawn this afternoon on motion of the state. Barnett was a bartender in the saloon of Graham at time the raid was made which resulted in the fine assessed against the proprietor.

Confederate Veterans To Gather At Convention

New Orleans, La.—The 33rd annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans to be held here April 11-13 will be the fifth gathering of its kind in New Orleans.

The first veteran's convention was held here June 10, 1889 and was presided over by John B. Gordon, commander in chief, with the late J. A. Charlaron as adjutant general. The second was on April 8 and 9, 1892 and as on the previous occasion General Gordon was the presiding officer. Again in May 1903 the old veterans gathered here to repeat the camp fire stories. General Gordon again occupied the chair with W. E. Mickle as adjutant general. Three years later, April 1906, the thinning grey lines of white haired men came back to the Crescent City.

And now for the fifth time the veterans will "pitch tent" in this city. General Julian S. Carr of Richmond, commander in chief, will be the presiding officer. Edgar M. Taylor will be the adjutant. The reunion will be held in the vast auditorium on Clio street between St. Charles and Prytania, used last year for the national Knights Templars conclave. Committees on arrangements have already been named.

Horse Drawn Hearse A Novelty At Funeral

Mrs. Lucy Rust, 72, died at Fairmount, Ky., and her body was brought here for burial. During the last years of her life, Mrs. Rust had steadfastly refused to ride in an automobile. She requested before her death that a horse-drawn hearse be used at her funeral.

After much effort, a hearse was found at Mount Washington, Ky., and brought here bearing the body of Mrs. Rust from Fairmount. Completing the cortege were the machines of relatives and friends.

Movement To Honor Alien Students Grows

Philadelphia.—Four hundred foreign students in schools and colleges here have been invited to attend the third annual dinner in their honor to be given by the Chamber of Commerce March 1.

Representatives of 41 countries are included in the list of students to whom invitations already have been sent.

Well known business men of this city, with their wives and daughters, will be grouped with the students at the dinner. Men prominent in American diplomatic and business circles will address the gathering, it is announced by the Chamber. Responses will be made by students. Representatives of each continent will be chosen as speakers.

The plan of entertaining foreign students at a banquet is attracting attention in other cities. Officials of the Chamber of Commerce say they have learned that a similar affair is planned by the New York Merchants' Association, and that Boston, which held such a dinner last year, will hold another this season. Banquets for foreign students also will be held, it is said, in Iowa City, Ia., Chicago, Indianapolis, Springfield, Mass., and South Bend, Ind.

"The Eclipse Of The Honeymoon" A Huge Success

Greeted by a small but enthusiastic audience the members of the cast of "The Eclipse of the Honeymoon," which was presented in the Port Edwards Auditorium Tuesday evening under the direction of Mrs. Anne Hocking Smith, a graduate of the Chicago School of Expression, more than covered themselves with glory in their presentation of the various parts.

From the time of the rise of the curtain until its fall the audience was kept in a continual state of laughter owing to the difficulties of the four bachelors who fell into the nets so ably spread by the four "young old maids," the Misses Hanman, Fonstad, Hunter and Krouse. From the time of the marriages until the end of the show the presentation was just one situation of clever comedy after another.

John Hill and Carlton Stamm as members of the bachelor four carried their parts exceedingly well as did Arthur Mulroy, Nekoosa, who was a scream as the butler.

According to members of the committee the attendance was a great disappointment as it was confidently expected that the turnout would be larger than what eventually attended. Many cases of sickness and the fact that the play was given during the Lenten season accounts for the small attendance, in the minds of members of the Parent-Teachers Association which sponsored the presentation.

Too Much Comfort Was Fatal To Crack Huskies

Berlin, N. H.—The crack dog team which Arthur T. Walden, of Woonsocket, drove to victory in the international dog race here last year is broken up, the result of too much petting. The huskies stood up under the hard going of the snow trails, but when they were benched at a show in Boston they developed distemper, and three of them had to be shot.

"The troubles that beset his team, according to Walden, were the results of their show experience. "It is the law of the wild that a husky will die or become distempered if he is housed in", said he. "Men who knew told me that would happen to my team, and it did.

Honolulu, T. H.—The last resting place of Kamehameha I, Hawaii's first and greatest king, is known to three persons and the location was not a secret that perished with the deaths of the attendants at the monarch's funeral rites, as popularly believed, Frederick W. Beckley, Hawaiian historian, told the Hawaiian Historical society at its last meeting here.

Kamehameha, a warrior chief of the island of Hawaii, was the first to conquer all of islands in the group. He united them into a kingdom with himself as monarch. According to the popular legend his body was secreted after death and the attendants were sworn never to reveal the location. Kamehameha died in 1819 at the age of 83 years.

Three Know Location

"I myself have seen the place where Kamehameha's bones lie," Beckley told the society. "There are two other persons living today who know his lastresting place. These are an old Hawaiian, in the federal service here, and an aged Hawaiian woman on the windward side of the island of Oahu. This information has been handed down through my family to the oldest son. It is a secret trust of honor and is not to be revealed. The common supposition that Kamehameha's remains were moved by King Kalakaua is false. Those were the bones of a lesser chief."

Beckley's statement, which aroused great interest, followed the reading of a paper on "The Passing of Kamehameha the Great", by Dr. W. D. Westervelt, authority in Hawiian legends and history.

According to Westervelt, Kamehameha was the first Hawiian chief who refused to permit the sairifice of a human beiner in an attempt to save the chieftain's life. When relatives attempted to sacrifice a man to propitiate the gods to spare the king's life, Kamehameha forbade them saying, "The man belongs to the chief".

Westervelt said that Kamehameha's last words were "E na i waie no oukou i kuu pono" (The right which I have done ye cannot undo.)

Confederate Veterans To Gather At Convention

New Orleans, La.—The 33rd annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans to be held here April 11-13 will be the fifth gathering of its kind in New Orleans.

The first veteran's convention was held here June 10, 1889 and was presided over by John B. Gordon, commander in chief, with the late J. A. Charlaron as adjutant general. The second was on April 8 and 9, 1892 and as on the previous occasion General Gordon was the presiding officer. Again in May 1903 the old veterans gathered here to repeat the camp fire stories. General Gordon again occupied the chair with W. E. Mickle as adjutant general. Three years later, April 1906, the thinning grey lines of white haired men came back to the Crescent City.

And now for the fifth time the veterans will "pitch tent" in this city. General Julian S. Carr of Richmond, commander in chief, will be the presiding officer, Edgar M. Taylor will be the adjutant. The reunion will be held in the vast auditorium on Clio street between St. Charles and Prytania, used last year for the national Knights Templars conclave. Committees on arrangements have already been named.

Horse Drawn Hearse A Novelty At Funeral

Mrs. Lucy Rust, 72, died at Fairmount, Ky., and her body was brought here for burial. During the last years of her life, Mrs. Rust had steadfastly refused to ride in an automobile. She requested before her death that a horse-drawn hearse be used at her funeral.

After much effort, a hearse was found at Mount Washington, Ky., and brought here bearing the body of Mrs. Rust from Fairmount. Completing the cortege were the machines of relatives and friends.

Movement To Honor Alien Students Grows

Philadelphia.—Four hundred foreign students in schools and colleges here have been invited to attend the third annual dinner in their honor to be given by the Chamber of Commerce March 1.

Representatives of 41 countries are included in the list of students to whom invitations already have been sent.

Well known business men of this city, with their wives and daughters, will be grouped with the students at the dinner. Men prominent in American diplomatic and business circles will address the gathering, it is announced by the Chamber. Responses will be made by students. Representatives of each continent will be chosen as speakers.

The plan of entertaining foreign students at a banquet is attracting attention in other cities. Officials of the Chamber of Commerce say they have learned that a similar affair is planned by the New York Merchants' Association, and that Boston, which held such a dinner last year, will hold another this season. Banquets for foreign students also will be held, it is said, in Iowa City, Ia., Chicago, Indianapolis, Springfield, Mass., and South Bend, Ind.

ALMOND - LINCOLN CAGERS TO PLAY AT POINT TOURNEY

PORTAGE COUNTY TOSSERS ELIMINATE MOSINEE TUESDAY NIGHT; RAPIDS TEAM EXPECTS HARD BATTLE

Almond high school baskets tossers won their into the Stevens Point Normal basketball tourney through their 34-20 victory over Mosinee Tuesday night at the Normal gym and by virtue of this victory will be the first team to face Lincoln cagers from this city in the opening game of the tournament which starts March 6.

Two Star Players

Except in the first few minutes of the game, when the Almond players seemed to have a case of "buck fever" the Mosinee players never had a chance with the snappy passing aggregation from Portage county. Davidson, right forward for the Almond cagers, was the individual star of the game ringing up 22 points in spite of Mosinee's efforts to stop him. Casey rangy center, ran second to Davidson and managed to score the other 12 points.

Rapids' Defense Good

With two such men in their lineup Wisconsin Rapids players will have their hands full if they expect to be left in the running after first night's game. Coach Ritchay is extremely optimistic in his belief that the defense of the Lincoln quintette will withstand the onslaught of the two Almond stars. He bases his beliefs on the fact that the defense of the local team has been first class all season and that the guards are capable of breaking up any two man attack.

If the Lincoln cagers emerge victorious in the game against Almond they will be obliged to play the winner of the Westfield-Friendship game. This game should not be as difficult as the Almond game as neither Westfield or Friendship is expected to show the class that Almond undoubtedly will.

With a comparatively large lead the Specials are practically assured of the minor league title.

Los Angeles Cal. Mar.1.—James J. Jeffries, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, who filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United State district court here yesterday, apparently is uncertain as to the number of his creditors and what he owes each one.

In his petition he asked permission from the court to be allowed to amend his bill by inserting names of creditors and amounts due each of them as soon as he learns who and what they are.

He gave his total liabilities as $292,183 and the total assets as $150,950. Several banks are listed as creditors and stock in various concerns figured in the assets.

The total funded debt of the railroads of the United States is $9,820,277,885, about $27,000,000 of which is outstanding in the hands of the public.

DISCUSS PLAN OF POINT-MARSHFIELD WATER PIPE LINE

POINT MAN SAYS RUN LINE TO RELIEVE CONDITIONS AT MARSHFIELD; TO GET WATER FROM PLOVER HILL SPRINGS

Stevens Point—Construction of a 32 mile water main to Marshfield and sale of Plover Hills spring water to that city to solve its baffling water shortage problem is the proposal of A. N. Berens of this city.

Mr. Berens believes that it might not be found impracticable to undertake such a project, pointing out that in the city of Chicago hundreds of miles of mains have been laid and are in constant use supplying water to its consumers. Building of an inter-city utility service between Stevens Point and Marshfield would be no less expensive than a project of equal proportions elsewhere, he believes. Under his plan, substations could be erected to force the water through the mains to its ultimate destination.

Would Solve Problem

It is pointed out that Marshfield has spent many thousands of dollars in unsuccessful attempts to secure an adequate and satisfactory water supply to meet the normal demands of consumption. A pipe line from Stevens Point's new sources of supply would solve the problem. Mr. Berens believes and might eventually prove a valuable source of revenue to the city by the continuous sale of the spring water to the less fortunate Wood county city. It is his opinion that the cost of such an engineering feat might not prove prohibitive because of Marshfield's dire need of the commodity, which might prompt it to look with favor upon the idea.

Cites Other Cases

In support of the project the case of New York City was also cited. New York gets its entire water supply from a natural reservoir miles away in Adirondack mountains and in establishing this system moved an entire village from a basin so that the reservoir could be constructed in the valley. It was even necessary to move a cemetery to accomplish this work of engineering.

Bankers In Japan Are Extremely Optimistic

Tokio—The Japanese business world opened the New Year with considerable anxiety as to what the next twelve months will bring forth. Conditions prevailing in December, when several small banks went to the wall, owing to their speculative dealings, made foreboding rather pessimistic, but into this cloud Governor Inouye of the Bank of Japan, brought a ray of sunshine. He expressed the view that the gradual decline in the prices of commodities was a hopeful sign and expressed the belief that the fall would continue until the index figure stood at 60 above 1914. Today's Japan's index figure stands at 197 compared with 207 in 1921; London's being 167 compared with 187 in 1921 and New York's 154 compared with 124.

ALMOND - LINCOLN CAGERS TO PLAY AT POINT TOURNEY

Almond high school baskets tossers won their into the Stevens Point Normal basketball tourney through their 34-20 victory over Mosinee Tuesday night at the Normal gym and by virtue of this victory will be the first team to face Lincoln cagers from this city in the opening game of the tournament which starts March 6.

Two Star Players

Except in the first few minutes of the game, when the Almond players semed to have a case of "buck fever" the Mosinee players never had a chance with the snappy passing aggregation from Portage county. Davidson, right forward for the Almond cagers, was the individual star of the game ringing up 22 points in spite of Mosinee's efforts to stop him. Casey rangy center, ran second to Davidson and managed to score the other 12 points.

Rapids' Defense Good

With two such men in their lineup Wisconsin Rapids players will have their hands full if they expect to be left in the running after first night's game. Coach Ritchay is extremely optimistic in his belief that the defense of the Lincoln quintette will withstand the onslaught of the two Almond stars. He bases his beliefs on the fact that the defense of the local team has been first class all season and that the guards are capable of breaking up any two man attack.

If the Lincoln cagers emerge victorious in the game against Almond they will be obliged to play the winner of the Westfield-Friendship game. This game should not be as difficult as the Almond game as neither Westfield or Friendship is expected to show the class that Almond undoubtebly will.

Murphy's Specials Take Two From Garagemen

Murphy's Specials further entrenched themselves in first place in the minor league race when they succeeded in taking the wind out of the Buick's sales in two games out of three Wednesday night on the Elk's alleys. The Byway's, who were scheduled to howl against Murphy's Specials Feb. 22, bowled off the game last night and managed to win one game. With a comparatively large lead the Specials are practically assured of the minor league title.

Jim Jeffries Is Broke; Doesn't Know His Debts

(By Associated Press)

Los Angelus Cal. Mar.1.—James J. Jeffries, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, who filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United State district court here yesterday, apparently is uncertain as to the number of his creditors and what he owes each one.

In his petition he asked permission from the court to be allowed to amend his bill by inserting names of creditors and amounts due each of them as soon as he learns who and what they are.

He gave his total liabilities as $292,183 and the total assets as $130,950. Several banks are listed as creditors and stock in various concerns figured in the assets.

The total funded debt of the railroads of the United States is $9,820,277,885, about $25,000,000 of which is outstanding in the hands of the public.

Stevens Point—Construction of a 32 mile water main to Marshfield and sale of Plover Hills spring water to that city to solve its baffling water shortage problem is the proposal of A. N. Berens of this city.

Mr. Berens believes that it might not be found impracticable to undertake such a project, pointing out that in the city of Chicago hundreds of miles of mains have been laid and are in constant use supplying water to its consumers. Building of an inter-city utility service between Stevens Point and Marshfield would be no less expensive than a project of equal proportions elsewhere, he believes. Under his plan, sub-stations could be erected to force the water through the mains to its ultimate destination.

Would Solve Problem

It is pointed out that Marshfield has spent many thousands of dollars in unsuccessful attempts to secure an adequate and satisfactory water supply to meet the normal demands of consumption. A pipe line from Stevens Point's new sources of supply would solve the problem. Mr. Berens believes and might eventually prove a valuable source of revenue to the city by the continuous sale of the spring water to the less fortunate Wood county city. It is his opinion that the cost of such an engineering feat might not prove prohibitive because of Marshfield's dire need of the commodity, which might prompt it to look with favor upon the idea.

Cites Other Cases

In support of the project the case of New York City was also cited. New York gets its entire water supply from a natural reservoir miles away in Odirondack mountains and in establishing this system moved an entire village from a basin so that the reservoir could be constructed in the valley. It was even necessary to move a cemetery to accomplish this work of engineering.

Bankers In Japan Are Extremely Optimistic

Tokio—The Japanese business world opened the New Year with considerable anxiety as to what the next twelve months will bring forth. Conditions prevailing in December, when several small banks went to the wall, owing to their speculative dealings, made foreboding rather pessimistic, but into this cloud Governor Inouye of the Bank of Japan, brought a ray of sunshine. He expressed the view that the gradual decline in the prices of commodities was a hopeful sign and expressed the belief that the fall would continue until the index figure stood at 60 above 1914. Today's Japan's index figure stands at 197 compared with 207 in 1921; London's being 167 compared with 187 in 1921 and New York's 154 compared with 124.
